授業の目標(Course Objectives)

This seminar aims to develop an understanding of collaborative processes to help multi-stakeholder groups create solutions to complex problems.

授業の内容(Course Contents)

Mediation is a private and consensual process in which an impartial person, a mediator, works with disputing parties to help them explore settlement, reconciliation, and understanding among them. This class is designed to enhance your facilitation skills and learn practical approaches to mediation. Throughout the semester, you will explore the strategies and theories of mediation to produce creative and mutually beneficial results on complex issues.

授業時間外(予習・復習等)の学習(Study Required Outside of Class)

This is an interactive seminar that will require weekly readings and preparation. Because the role-plays are the main activity, participation in the class discussion is valued; attendance, class participation, and written assignments are the core evaluation components.

As this is an advanced class of "Negotiation Basics," students interested in taking this seminar are recommended to take it in advance.

The students in this seminar may have the opportunity to participate in the ICC mediation competition (https://2go.iccwbo.org/).

成績評価方法・基準(Evaluation)

Attendance and class participation(70%)/Written assignment(30%)

テキスト(Textbooks)

Readings will be distributed in the class.
