

2023

Syllabi

Economics
(Graduate Courses)

Rikkyo University

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Sato Yuji
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA011

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Lim Chaisung
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA012

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Toyama Kyoji
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA013

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Shuto Wakana
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA014

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Ando Michihito
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA015

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Sakuramoto Takeshi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA016

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Arakawa Akiyoshi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA017

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Iijima Hiroyuki
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA018

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Ikegami Takehiko
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA019

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Mitani Susumu
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA020

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Komari Akihiko
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA021

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Yan Chengnan
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA022

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Tanaka Koshi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA023

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Sakurai Kimihito
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA024

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Shimanishi Tomoki
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA025

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Tajima Kayo
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA026

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Okabe Keishi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA027

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Morofuji Yumi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA028

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Yamagata Hiroyuki
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA029

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Yamamoto Shugo
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA032

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Ninomiya Kenshiro
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA033

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Kwak Yangchoon
Semester	※	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA034

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Sasaki Ryuji
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA035

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Minato Teruhiro
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA036

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Kikuchi Wataru
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA037

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Dewit, andrew
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA038

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Sekiguchi Satoshi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA039

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Suganuma Takashi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA040

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Hasumi Yu
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA041

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Fujiwara Arata
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA042

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Morimoto Sousuke
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA043

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Ikeda Takeshi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA044

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Yamada Yasuhiro
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA045

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Kometani Kenji
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA046

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Ishida Souhei
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA047

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Uchino Kazuki
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA048

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Sakamoto Masashi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA049

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Ozawa Michihiro
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA050

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Sato Yuji
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA051

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Lim Chaisung
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA052

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Toyama Kyoji
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA053

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Shuto Wakana
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA054

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Ando Michihito
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA055

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Sakuramoto Takeshi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA056

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Arakawa Akiyoshi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA057

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Iijima Hiroyuki
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA058

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Ikegami Takehiko
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA059

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Mitani Susumu
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA060

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Komari Akihiko
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA061

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Yan Chengnan
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA062

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Tanaka Koshi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA063

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Shimanishi Tomoki
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA065

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Tajima Kayo
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA066

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Okabe Keishi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA067

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Morofuji Yumi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA068

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Yamagata Hiroyuki
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA069

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Yamamoto Shugo
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA072

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Ninomiya Kenshiro
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA073

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Kwak Yangchoon
Semester	※	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA074

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Sasaki Ryuji
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA075

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Minato Teruhiro
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA076

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Kikuchi Wataru
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA077

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Dewit, andrew
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA078

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Sekiguchi Satoshi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA079

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Suganuma Takashi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA080

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Hasumi Yu
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA081

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Fujiwara Arata
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA082

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Morimoto Sousuke
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA083

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Ikeda Takeshi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA084

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Yamada Yasuhiro
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA085

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Kometani Kenji
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA086

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Ishida Souhei
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA087

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Uchino Kazuki
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA088

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Sakamoto Masashi
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA089

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Ozawa Michihiro
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA090

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Seki Tomokazu
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA095

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Seki Tomokazu
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA096

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Sakai Tsutomu
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The Graduate School of Economics' curriculum objective is that "students will receive a general yet specialized education in the College of Economics, researching economics and accounting, mastering their intricacies, while cultivating character based in Christian virtues and contributing to cultural progress." In order to stay true to this objective, students will acquire fundamental knowledge on economics and accounting. They will finalize their plans for their master's thesis, sharpening their presentation abilities.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master's thesis concept presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the concept presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA097

Course Title	Guidance in Preparing a Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Sakai Tsutomu
Semester	Full Year Others	Credit	4 Credits
Course Number	ECX6020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies in College of Economics as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will acquire practical knowledge on economy and accounting. They will make interim and draft presentations before creating and submitting their theses.

Course Contents

Students will learn how to prepare for their thesis writing by creating skeleton sheets. Students will bear in mind their research originalities while discussing about prior researches. To prepare for their master’s thesis interim presentation, students will check their arguments and think about their thesis structures. After discussion at the interim presentation, students will recheck their skeleton sheets and polish their thesis concepts. After master’s thesis draft presentation, students will create and submit their theses.

The following is a conceptual, average progress plan. Students should be aware that they may receive different instructions depending on their specializations. In addition, there will be frequent private instructions, simultaneous progresses, and repetition of certain parts.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA098

Course Title	Special Lecture on Theory of Commodities and Income Distribution 1
Instructor	Morimoto Sousuke
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5120	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will learn basic theories of Marxian economics and classical economics by reading Marx's Capital.

Course Contents

Students will learn basic theories of Marxian economics and classical economics by reading Das Kapital.

Professor will listen to and discuss with students to decide which parts of Das Kapital and how much students will read every time. The following lesson plan is one of the reading recommendations. With this plan, students will read the first volume but those who know the first volume may read the second and third volumes.

Note: Some research talks will be required.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA103

Course Title	Special Lecture on Theory of Commodities and Income Distribution 2
Instructor	Morimoto Sousuke
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5120	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will learn basic theories of Marxian economics and classical economics by reading Marx's Capital.

Course Contents

After Special Lecture on Theory of Commodities and Income Distribution 1, students will learn basic theories of Marxian and classical economics by reading Marx's Das Kapital. In addition, participants should give some research talks on their own research topics.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA104

Course Title	Special Lecture on Theory of Value 1
Instructor	Sasaki Ryuji
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5120	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

To read and understand Karl Marx's 'Capital' and related manuscripts correctly. Through this, students deepen their understanding of the contemporary significance of Marx's critique of political economy, as well as their understanding of related disputes and theories.

Course Contents

Participants read 'Capital' and related manuscripts. Details will be decided based on the research themes of the participants.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA105

Course Title	Special Lecture on Theory of Value 2
Instructor	Sasaki Ryuji
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5120	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

To read and understand Karl Marx's 'Capital' and 'Manuscript of Capital' correctly. Through this, students deepen their understanding of the contemporary significance of Marx's critique of political economy, as well as their understanding of related disputes and theories.

Course Contents

Participants read 'Capital' and related drafts. Details will be decided based on the research themes of the participants.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA106

Course Title	Special Lecture on Business Cycles 1
Instructor	Ninomiya Kenshiro
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5120	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will understand differences between (neo) classical economics which emphasize supply and Keynesian economics which emphasizes demand. The goal of this class is to help students to learn basic analysis methods in post-Keynesian macrodynamic model.

Course Contents

While learning basic neoclassical and Keynesian models, students will learn how to analyze post-Keynesian macrodynamic model. As its application, students will learn Kaldor cycle model, one of post-Keynesian macrodynamic model, and numeral simulation method. Post-Keynesian macrodynamics use non-linear economics such as proving existence of closed orbit with Hopf branch theorem.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA107

Course Title	Special Lecture on Business Cycles 2
Instructor	Ninomiya Kenshiro
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5120	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

After global financial crisis triggered by sub-prime crisis, many have focused on financial instability hypothesis by unorthodox economist Minsky. In this class, students will review various researches that apply mathematical models on financial instability hypothesis. Through this, students will understand economic climate trend and acquire knowledge of model analysis.

Course Contents

In this class, students will review various researches that apply mathematical models on financial instability hypothesis and read relevant papers. The "report" in the lesson plan refers to the report by students such as papers. Professor will determine theses and other reports to be submitted. Students will create reports such as summaries and slides (TeX or PowerPoint).

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA108

Course Title	Special Lecture on Finance 2-1
Instructor	Dewit, andrew
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Course Contents

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA113

Course Title	Special Lecture on Finance 2-2
Instructor	Dewit, andrew
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Course Contents

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA114

Course Title	Special Lecture on Modern Finance 1
Instructor	Iijima Hiroyuki
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

There are two goals for this class. One is to deepen its theoretical and historical understanding to develop the ability to analyze financial activities that continue to expand and become more complex. The other is that based on this understanding, it will be possible to analyze financial issues from various perspectives under modern capitalism.

Course Contents

After reading the literature necessary to achieve the objectives of this lecture, we will have a discussion. In the second half, we will discuss the research reports of the students. All students, not just the presenters, will be required to prepare resumes and materials for discussion.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA115

Course Title	Special Lecture on Modern Finance 2
Instructor	Iijima Hiroyuki
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

There are two goals for this class. One is to deepen its theoretical and historical understanding to develop the ability to analyze international financial activities that continue to expand and become more complex. The other is that based on this understanding, it will be possible to analyze financial issues from various perspectives under modern capitalism.

Course Contents

After reading the literature necessary to achieve the objectives of this lecture, we will have a discussion. In the second half, we will discuss the research reports of the students. All students, not just the presenters, will be required to prepare resumes and materials for discussion.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA116

Course Title	Special Lecture on International Finance 1
Instructor	Yamamoto Shugo
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

This course is intended for students who want to write a Master's thesis in the field of international finance and finance

Course Contents

The course content is about history and recent trends in international currency and cross-border capital flow. Not only reading, but also we will make a discussion. Therefore, every students must prepare for the course.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA119

Course Title	Special Lecture on International Finance 2
Instructor	Yamamoto Shugo
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

This course is intended for students who want to write a Master's thesis in the field of international finance and finance.

Course Contents

The course content is about history and recent trends in international currency and cross-border capital flow. Not only reading, but also we will make a discussion. Therefore, every students must prepare for the course.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA120

Course Title	Special Lecture on Economic Statistics 1
Instructor	Sakuramoto Takeshi
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5320	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will be able to analyze statistical data while studying financial statistics design by focusing on System of National Accounts.

Course Contents

In this class, students will study overall framework of official statistics and System of National Accounts framework within. Students will focus particularly on the later and take turns to read these in the class. Occasionally students will use PC to practice and to understand usability of both concept and numerical value. In many cases, social issues are catalysts for statistical developments. Students will come across relationship between statistical production and social issue any time during this class.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA121

Course Title	Special Lecture on Economic Statistics 2
Instructor	Sakuramoto Takeshi
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5320	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will acquire systematic understanding about macro statistics, the core of financial statistics. Students will learn how to use and analyze data, while deepening their understanding about System of National Accounts.

Course Contents

System of National Accounts is considered core accounting system for official statistics. Focusing on SNA, students will learn systematically international trade balance statistics, Trade in Value Added Database, financial statistics, productivity statistics, development indicator, Supply, Use and Input-Output Tables, government financial statistics, and macro statistics. Students will also study industrial and production classifications that are essential in statistics. This class will proceed in both reading and seminar formats. Students will receive high volume of Excel seminars and assignments. They will also submit written reports regularly.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA122

Course Title	Special Lecture on Modern Economics1-1
Instructor	Arakawa Akiyoshi
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5120	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will learn basics of economics of graduate school level to create foundation for their future researches.

Course Contents

Students will use and study typical graduate school economics texts. Current institutional economics covers wide areas, including old institutional economics by Commons and Mitchell, new institutional economics by Coase and North, and comparative institutional analysis by Masahiko Aoki. In this class, professor will refer to students' interests and select typical textbooks from areas mentioned above for students to learn.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA123

Course Title	Special Lecture on Modern Economics1-2
Instructor	Arakawa Akiyoshi
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5120	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will learn basics of evolutionary economics at graduate school level as foundation for their future researches.

Course Contents

Students will use and study typical textbooks of graduate school evolutionary economics. Current evolutionary economics covers many branches, including Schumpeter economics, Nelson Winter's approach, Bowles and Gintis' approach. Evolutionary psychology has also contributed greatly to explaining irrationality of human behavior. In this class, professor will refer to students' interests and select typical evolutionary economics textbooks for students to learn.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA124

Course Title	Special Lecture on Modern Economics3-1
Instructor	Fujiwara Arata
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5120	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will understand characteristics of Keynes and post-Keynesian arguments. Students will read the latest post-Keynesian literatures, tracing back to its methodology. While working to understand its contents, students will gain new perspectives for their researches.

Course Contents

Students will read several Keynes and post-Keynesian literatures. If the literatures are in English, students will not only translate them, but also examine their meanings, understand their significances and limits.

During the semester, students will make several interim presentations on their researches to deepen mutual understanding among students and to advance their researches.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA127

Course Title	Special Lecture on Modern Economics3-2
Instructor	Fujiwara Arata
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5120	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will understand characteristics of Keynes and post-Keynesian arguments. Students will read the latest post-Keynesian literatures, tracing back to its methodology. While working to understand its contents, students will gain new perspectives for their researches.

Course Contents

Following Special Lecture 1, students will read several Keynes and post-Keynesian literatures. Students will examine literatures' meanings, understand their significances and limits.

During the semester, students will make several interim presentations on their researches to deepen mutual understanding among students and to advance their researches.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA128

Course Title	Special Lecture on Finance 3-1
Instructor	Sekiguchi Satoshi
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will understand trends of finance, tax, and social security systems in various countries.

Course Contents

In this class, students will compare financial, tax, and social security systems in various countries while paying attention to theories about finance, tax, and social security.

Professor will make brief explanations. After that, students will make summary reports and participate in discussions. Selected students will then organize these arguments.

Professor will show students specific subjects at the beginning of class. In the first half, students will use the latest Japanese literatures and in the second half the latest foreign language literatures.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA129

Course Title	Special Lecture on Finance 3-2
Instructor	Sekiguchi Satoshi
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will understand connections among trend of public accounting theory and budget/settlement theory, through perspective of public finance and financial theory.

Course Contents

In this class, students will discuss significance and issue of financial budget/settlement theory and public accounting system debated actively in recent years while paying attention to various issues in modern Japan's public finance. Students will make comparisons internationally when doing so.

Professor will make brief explanations. After that, students will make summary reports and participate in discussions. Selected students will then organize these arguments.

Professor will show students specific subjects at the beginning of class. In the first half, students will use the latest Japanese literatures and in the second half the latest foreign language literatures.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA130

Course Title	Special Lecture on Public Finance A-1
Instructor	Komari Akihiko
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will analyze overall finance and tax, and specific cases of finance and tax system to obtain perspective on finance and tax implementation.

Course Contents

(1) Students will go over basics and overview of public sector, finance; Function, system, current state, financial income and expense, sustainability, etc.

(2) Students will go over basics and overview of tax system;

Students will analyze overall framework, basics, and specific cases of tax system, principle, and theory.

(Note) This class will proceed based on the following plan. Professor will notify students about specific plan afterwards.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA137

Course Title	Special Lecture on Public Finance A-2
Instructor	Komari Akihiko
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will analyze overall finance and tax, and specific cases of finance and tax system to obtain perspective on finance and tax implementation.

Course Contents

(1) Students will go over basics and overview of public sector, finance; Function, system, current state, financial income and expense, sustainability, etc.

(2) Students will go over basics and overview of tax system;

Students will analyze overall framework, basics, and specific cases of tax system, principle, and theory.

(Note) This class will proceed based on the following plan. Professor will notify students about specific plan afterwards.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA138

Course Title	Special Lecture on American Economic History 1
Instructor	Mizuno Rika
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will learn how to report, extract arguments, and participate in discussion by reading papers on American economic history.

Students will form their perspective so that they can compare and discuss historical and modern issues in US.

Course Contents

Papers on American economic history up to 19th century will be selected. Reporter and moderator will be selected for each paper. Students will then participate in discussion in addition to reporting and reading.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA201

Course Title	Special Lecture on American Economic History 2
Instructor	Mizuno Rika
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will learn how to report, extract arguments, and participate in discussion by reading papers on American economic history.

Students will form their perspective so that they can compare and discuss historical and modern issues in US.

Course Contents

Papers on American economic history from 20th century until now will be selected. Reporter and moderator will be selected for each paper. Students will then participate in discussion in addition to reporting and reading.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA202

Course Title	Special Lecture on Asian Economic History 1
Instructor	Minato Teruhiro
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will read and understand basic Asia economic history literatures. They will then clarify their research subjects and issue awareness. Furthermore, students will discuss among themselves about their research reports to acquire theoretical thinking skill.

Course Contents

Students will read basic literatures and papers on modern Asia economic history. Professor will discuss with students to decide literatures and papers to be read, including English literatures. Other than that, students may be asked to report their researches at any time.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA207

Course Title	Special Lecture on Asian Economic History 2
Instructor	Minato Teruhiro
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will read and understand basic Asia economic history literatures. They will then clarify their research subjects and issue awareness. Furthermore, students will discuss among themselves about their research reports to acquire theoretical thinking skill.

Course Contents

Students will read basic literatures and papers on modern Asia economic history. Professor will discuss with students to decide literatures and papers to be read, including English literatures. Other than that, students may be asked to report their researches at any time.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA208

Course Title	Special Lecture on Japanese Economic History 1
Instructor	Okabe Keishi
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will aim to achieve the following three points.

1. Students will understand basic literatures on Japan economic and management history.
2. Students will acquire research methods on Japan economic and management history.
3. Students will acquire ability to make presentations based on Japanese economic and management history.

Course Contents

Students will read Japan Economic History by Minoru Sawai and Masayuki Tanimoto (Yuhikaku publishing, 2016), a basic literature on modern Japan economic history. In class, advisors will discuss with graduate students about what they are reading in a circle to deepen their understanding. In addition, graduate students may also carry out research reports.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA211

Course Title	Special Lecture on Japanese Economic History 2
Instructor	Okabe Keishi
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study universal and specialized subjects found in curriculum of Graduate School of Economics, “researching and understanding in depth general and specialized studies as well as economics, accountancy, and train one’s personality based on the Christian teaching and to contribute to cultural development”. Students will aim to achieve the following three points.

1. Students will understand basic literatures on Japan economic and management history.
2. Students will acquire research methods on Japan economic and management history.
3. Students will acquire ability to make presentations based on Japanese economic and management history.

Course Contents

Students will read Japan Economic History by Minoru Sawai and Masayuki Tanimoto (Yuhikaku publishing, 2016), a basic literature on modern Japan economic history. In class, advisors will discuss with graduate students about what they are reading in a circle to deepen their understanding. In addition, graduate students may also carry out research reports.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA212

Course Title	Special Lecture on Business History 1
Instructor	Shimanishi Tomoki
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students should become able to understand, critique and discuss methods of researching the business history of modern Japan and the current state of research in this field.

Course Contents

We will study literature and academic papers containing research on the business history of modern Japan, and students will develop specialized knowledge and writing skills.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA217

Course Title	Special Lecture on Business History 2
Instructor	Shimanishi Tomoki
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students should become able to understand, critique and discuss methods of researching the business history of modern Japan and the current state of research in this field.

Course Contents

We will study literature and academic papers containing research on the business history of modern Japan, and students will develop specialized knowledge and writing skills.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA218

Course Title	Oriental History1
Instructor	Yokkaichi Yasuhiro
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will acquire methodologies for historical research, archaeological research, trade history research, and art history research using ceramics as research materials, and acquire the ability to carry out actual research.

Course Contents

Students will examine previous research on the production, distribution, and consumption of Chinese ceramics, and learn about academic research using ceramics as research materials. This class is conducted in a seminar format. Students' presentations and discussions, and faculty reviews and guidance are combined to promote this course.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA221

Course Title	Oriental History2
Instructor	Mori Tatsuya
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

This course aims to understand the historical impacts of "ceramic distribution" in Maritime Asia including China, Japan, Southeast Asia, and the Indian Ocean world.

Course Contents

In this course, we look at Chinese porcelain and ceramics of the Song-Yuan-Ming period and consider the social influence on China and the neighbouring regions.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA222

Course Title	Occidental History1
Instructor	Sato Seiko
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

By reading articles related to the Italian Renaissance, students will deepen their general understanding of Renaissance culture and further improve their language skills necessary for writing theses or dissertations.

Course Contents

The student in charge of each lecture will present Japanese translations and related topics of articles that are close to their research and interest. As students become accustomed to Japanese translation, it is possible to increase the amount of work assigned and limit classroom presentations to abstracts and related topics, but there is no need to increase the amount of work from the beginning. Priority will be given to ensuring that students are able to read the texts and that the classes do not interfere with the writing of theses or dissertations.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA223

Course Title	Occidental History2
Instructor	Sato Seiko
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

By reading articles related to the Italian Renaissance, students will deepen their general understanding of Renaissance culture and further improve their language skills necessary for writing theses or dissertations.

Course Contents

The student in charge of each lecture will present Japanese translations and related topics of articles that are close to their research and interest. As students become accustomed to Japanese translation, it is possible to increase the amount of work assigned and limit classroom presentations to abstracts and related topics, but there is no need to increase the amount of work from the beginning. Priority will be given to ensuring that students are able to read the texts and that the classes do not interfere with the writing of theses or dissertations.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA224

Course Title	Special Lecture on Economic Policies 1
Instructor	Sakurai Kimihito
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5520	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Can global capitalism survive ? What policy issues does it need to cope with ?
To understand multi dimensions of globalization such as its definition, history and diversity.

Course Contents

21 century capitalism is now at the turning point. Global financial crisis, IT, sustainability of resource an energy will be at stake. Can we cope with crises caused by financialization, casino capitalism, and 'mad money' ? How do digital technologies such as industrial internet and I o T transform the structure of industry and labor ? Can we deal with population, water and food issues? Explanations will be given from the historical view with the origin of globalization to correspond to the global capitalism today.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA301

Course Title	Special Lecture on Economic Policies 2
Instructor	Sakurai Kimihito
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5520	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Can global capitalism survive ? What policy issues does it need to cope with ?
 To understand multi dimensions of globalization such as its definition, history and diversity.
 To understand the background of anti-globalist economic policies.

Course Contents

21 century capitalism is now at the turning point. Global financial crisis, IT, sustainability of resource and energy will be at stake. We have also antiglobaism and populism. Can we cope with crises caused by financialization, casino capitalism, and 'mad money'? How do digital technologies such as industrial internet and I o T transform the structure of industry and labor ? Can we deal with population, water and food issues? Explanations will be given from historical view with the origin of globalization to correspond to the global capitalism today.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA302

Course Title	Special Lecture on Industrial Economics 1
Instructor	Kikuchi Wataru
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5420	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study the theory, history, and actual conditions of industry in order to realize the Graduate School of Economics' curricular policy: "On the basis of general and specialized education, study the economy, economic policy, accounting, and management, and pursue their depths, while cultivating character and contributing to the advancement of culture on the basis of Christianity.

There is wealth of cumulative researches that analyze industries. Industry refers to broad concept placed amidst individual company and overall economy. Because of that, there have been many cumulative researches. In Special Lecture on Industrial Economics 1, from large store of industrial researches, students select and read about empirical researches targeting Japanese automotive industry with large global competitive edge.

Course Contents

Students will read articles on qualitative research methods published in the Academy of Management Journal, Academy of Management Review and other journals. In addition, we will also read papers on the automobile industry published in Enterprise & Society and other journals.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA303

Course Title	Special Lecture on Industrial Economics 2
Instructor	Kikuchi Wataru
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5420	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study the theory, history, and actual conditions of industry in order to realize the Graduate School of Economics' curricular policy: "On the basis of general and specialized education, study the economy, economic policy, accounting, and management, and pursue their depths, while cultivating character and contributing to the advancement of culture on the basis of Christianity.

There is wealth of cumulative researches that analyze industries. Industry refers to broad concept placed amidst individual company and overall economy. Because of that, there have been many cumulative researches. In Industrial Economics 2, students will read through empirical studies focusing on design and brands.

Course Contents

Students will first read articles on design management and brand management published in Research Policy, Journal of Business Research, and other journals. After that, we will read papers on specific industries published in Business History, Business Horizons, etc. in order to understand the significance of the papers.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA304

Course Title	Special Lecture on Chinese Economy 1
Instructor	Yan Chengnan
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5520	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will analyze mutual relationship between economic development and institutional change in China. Students will acquire accurate understanding about Chinese economy by grasping various aspects of drastically changing Chinese socioeconomic system.

Course Contents

By reading texts and discussing their contents, students will think about various issues facing Chinese economy when transitioning from high to moderate economic growth – market competition, growth, distribution, disparity, environment, and employment. Students will think about their mechanism, current state, transformation, and political implementation to understand the nature of Chinese economic development accurately.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA309

Course Title	Special Lecture on Chinese Economy 2
Instructor	Yan Chengnan
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5520	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will analyze mutual relationship between economic development and institutional change in China. Students will acquire accurate understanding about Chinese economy by grasping various aspects of drastically changing Chinese socioeconomic system.

Course Contents

By reading texts and discussing their contents, students will think about various issues facing Chinese economy when transitioning from high to moderate economic growth – market competition, growth, distribution, disparity, environment, and employment. Students will think about their mechanism, current state, transformation, and political implementation to understand the nature of Chinese economic development accurately.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA310

Course Title	Special Lecture on Foreign Trade 1
Instructor	Tanaka Ryoichi
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5420	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

1. Basics of trade will be explained.
2. Post-war development of trade will be explained.
3. Modern trade will be explained.

Course Contents

1. Trade history will be explained.
2. Trade policy and practice will be explained.
3. Post-war trade system will be explained.
4. Connections among trade, development, and income gap will be explained.
5. Various issues such as regionalism will be explained.
6. Issues caused by globalization of resources will be explained.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA311

Course Title	Special Lecture on Foreign Trade 2
Instructor	Tanaka Ryoichi
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5420	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

1. Students will be able to explain settlement function, which is inseparable from international trade.
2. Students will be able to explain foreign exchange function particularly in export trade.
3. Students will be able to analyze supply and demand of foreign exchange based on balance of international payments.
4. Students will be able to explain global imbalance from perspective of foreign exchange supply and demand.
5. Students will be able to explain impact of recent foreign exchange market fluctuation on Japan's trade.

Course Contents

1. Settlement method in international trade will be explained.
2. Principle and basic mechanism of foreign exchange will be explained.
3. Technological innovation such as SWIFT and CLS in international settlement will be explained.
4. Cause of fluctuation in FX market will be explained.
5. Impact of fluctuation of FX market on trade will be explained.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA312

Course Title	Special Lecture on Social Policies 1
Instructor	Suganuma Takashi
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5520	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

By analysing socio-economic structure of Denmark as an innovative welfare state, this course aims at getting ability to study conditions of sustainability of the welfare states.

Course Contents

An innovative welfare state can be defined as "a state in which innovative human resources and organizations are promoted by the various institutions and values of the welfare state and innovation is easily induced". This year, after an overview of the Danish innovation system, we will read research papers on public sector innovation and labor-driven innovation.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA313

Course Title	Special Lecture on Social Policies 2
Instructor	Suganuma Takashi
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5520	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

By analysing socio-economic structure of Denmark as an innovative welfare state, this course aims at getting ability to study conditions of sustainability of the welfare states.

Course Contents

The project deals with cutting-edge research trends in the Danish innovation system. Focusing on government policies, the research will study innovation in general, digital policies, and green policies.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA314

Course Title	Special Lecture on Labor Economics 1
Instructor	Shuto Wakana
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5420	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will understand characteristics and formation process of labor–employment relationship and employment practice in Japan. They will also discuss current changes.

Course Contents

Previously Japanese employment practice has contributed greatly to Japan’s international competitiveness, but its balance is being upset. Due to increase of fixed–term and short–term employees, companies introduce performance–based or evaluation/result–based pays. Many people state that stable long–term employment and seniority system are legacy of the past. In this class, students will discuss previous Japanese employment system’s essence, formation, and issues it brought. At the same time, students will compare Japan with other developed nations in terms of salary system, skill cultivation, and labor–employment relationship to clarify characteristics found in Japan. Furthermore, students will discuss gradual qualitative changes in Japanese employment practice and forecast future labor–employment relationship and employment practice.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA315

Course Title	Special Lecture on Labor Economics 2
Instructor	Shuto Wakana
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5420	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will deepen their understanding by discussing globalized labor–employment relationship framework.

Course Contents

As globalization of management is progressing, labor unions are called to fortify their international solidarity. Nevertheless, many Japanese labor unions are still active only in Japan. In this class, students will discuss countrywide labor–employment gap between globalization of corporations and stagnated globalization of labor unions. In addition, students will focus on Europe when analyzing social regulations on multi–national corporations and labor unions’ expanding network. Students will discuss about how the labor–employment relationship in response to globalization should be.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA316

Course Title	Special Lecture on Small Business Problems and Studies 1
Instructor	Toyama Kyoji
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5820	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will consider theories and current states of SMEs and Monozukuri corporations in Japanese economy. Students will understand systematically foundation of industrial competitive edge and be able to extract its political significance. These subjects include globalized economic structure, system of division of labor, R&D, intellectual collaboration, and market creation.

Course Contents

Since long ago, many people have been questioning international competitiveness of Japanese industries. Nationwide corporations and businesses are decreasing. Some sectors and regions sustain their employment by increasing their added value or forming network with foreign countries. Students will study Japanese Monozukuri: Changing Competitive Edge (Nikkei Publishing) by Tetsuo Minato. Students will read each chapter and analyze foundation of competitive edge Japanese Monozukuri industry .

Students will read not only each chapter, but also reference literatures and several related papers shown. Each time, students will submit summary report and participate in discussion. Many people sought Japanese corporation competitive edge in Monozukuri thinking and method. Here, students will see shifting competition factor from more efficient labor division to R&D product innovation. Students will discuss these theories from multiple perspectives and angles. In addition to political issues, students will consider existential foundation of SMEs, Business Vuntures and their roles.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA317

Course Title	Special Lecture on Small Business Problems and Studies 2
Instructor	Toyama Kyoji
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5820	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will analyze Japanese SMEs and global economy organically. Students will acquire research skills to think about various modern issues in East Asia from multiple perspectives.

Course Contents

In this class, students will think about activities of SMEs, models, and structures in terms of East Asian economic and social structures. It is crucial for students to conduct self-directed analyses. Competition and cooperation, growth and development – These complicated mechanisms exist among economic giants such as China–Japan, South Korea–Taiwan, and among Southeast Asian countries. These mechanisms cover industry, corporation, technology, production, organization, and labor division. Students will discuss these from bird-eye view and multiple perspectives to explore various issues and potential in Japanese SMEs. In the class, students will report, read textbooks, and participate in discussion.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA318

Course Title	Special Lecture on Structure of Asian Economy 1
Instructor	Kwak Yangchoon
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5520	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Through the analysis of the economic structure of Asian countries, we will consider the elucidation of various problems in the Asian region and their solutions.

Course Contents

Through reading the textbook, we will consider the background and issues of various problems (income disparity, environmental destruction, gender problems, regional conflicts, etc.) that the Asian region has.

As for how to proceed with the lessons, students will develop the ability to think about the above problems by themselves through reports and discussions by the students.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA319

Course Title	Special Lecture on Structure of Asian Economy 2
Instructor	Kwak Yangchoon
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5520	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

By studying various problems occurring in Asia, we will understand Asia in the 21st century and the relationship between Japan and Asia. Through understanding the dynamism of Asia, we will look back on the challenges facing the Japanese economy. Finally, understand the position and significance of the Asian economy in the world economy.

Course Contents

While explaining various problems that are currently occurring in Asia, understand the causes and solutions. In addition, by explaining how Japan, which is a member of Asia, will deal with Asian countries in the future, it will be an opportunity to think about the role that Japan should play in Asia. Buzz sessions (group discussions) will be held in the latter half of the class so that students can develop their own ability to think about the above problems.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA320

Course Title	Special Lecture on Economic Theory of Securities 1
Instructor	Mitani Susumu
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will analyze modern capitalism system from financialization perspective. Students will clarify theoretically and empirically historical development of financial system and market.

Course Contents

In this class, students will use Financialised Capitalism by Costas Lapavistas (2018, published by Nihon Keizai Hyoronsha) as textbook. Students will learn about basic framework of modern financial market, securities investment, and asset management in financial institutions. This class will proceed with textbook reading, reporters' presentations, and discussion about these contents.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA321

Course Title	Special Lecture on Economic Theory of Securities 2
Instructor	Mitani Susumu
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will analyze modern capitalism system from financialization perspective. Students will clarify theoretically and empirically historical development of financial system and market.

Course Contents

In this class, students will use Financialised Capitalism by Costas Lapavistas (2018, published by Nihon Keizai Hyoronsha) as textbook. Students will learn about basic framework of modern financial market, securities investment, and asset management in financial institutions. This class will proceed with textbook reading, reporters' presentations, and discussion about these contents.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA322

Course Title	Special Lecture on Japanese Economic 1
Instructor	Lim Chaisung
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Post-war East Asian economy has experienced long period of high or compressed growth parallel to the cold war. From perspective of economic history, Japan, Taiwan, South Korea, China and their surrounding 4 regions and countries have achieved great economic growth based on industrialization despite lag in their progress. In human history this phenomenon is only observed in East Asia. Amidst this, Japan has constructed high-growth mechanism through the so-called investment cycle model. Through these, Japan has recorded roughly 10% annual growth from 1955 to crude oil crisis 1973. Although Japan seems like different country if we look at foreign capital inflow and high dependency on trade, it is still the prototype for high growth. Through comparative perspective, professor will clarify how these high-growth mechanisms work in Japan and East Asia, and why they had inevitably end.

Course Contents

Students will read The Historical Origins of The High Economic Growth in East Asia by Kazuo Hori (2016, Kyoto University Press), The high-growth Economy in Japan by Takeda Haruhito (2011, Yuhikaku publishing), and related papers. Students will explore mechanisms of high economic growth based on these.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA325

Course Title	Special Lecture on Japanese Economic 2
Instructor	Lim Chaisung
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Post-war East Asian economy has experienced long period of high or compressed growth parallel to the cold war. From perspective of economic history, Japan, Taiwan, South Korea, China and their surrounding 4 regions and countries have achieved great economic growth based on industrialization despite lag in their progress. In human history this phenomenon is only observed in East Asia. Amidst this, Japan has constructed high-growth mechanism through the so-called investment cycle model. Through these, Japan has recorded roughly 10% annual growth from 1955 to crude oil crisis 1973. Although Japan seems like different country if we look at foreign capital inflow and high dependency on trade, it is still the prototype for high growth. Through comparative perspective, professor will clarify how these high-growth mechanisms work in Japan and East Asia, and why they had inevitably end.

Course Contents

Students will read The Historical Origins of The High Economic Growth in East Asia by Kazuo Hori (2016, Kyoto University Press), The high-growth Economy in Japan by Takeda Haruhito (2011, Yuhikaku publishing), and related papers. Students will explore mechanisms of high economic growth based on these.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA326

Course Title	Special Lecture on Urban Policy Studies 1
Instructor	Kagawa Ryosuke
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5420	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

To be able to analyze various problems related to cities and regions in accordance with the theoretical framework of economics.
To be able to logically explain the concept of economics of cities and regions.

Course Contents

This course is a seminar-style study of texts dealing with the basic concepts and theoretical framework of urban economics. As an introduction, we will confirm that the distribution of economic activities is spatially heterogeneous. In the first half of the course, we will examine the relationship between intra-city structure and scale among multiple cities in the framework of urban economics. In the second half, we will use spatial economics to understand that the distribution of economic activity (the reason why agglomeration occurs) can be explained by endogenizing the flow of people and goods. In class we emphasize presentations by students and active discussions. The textbook used and the content of the class may be changed depending on the level of understanding of the students and their areas of interest.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA327

Course Title	Special Lecture on Urban Policy Studies 2
Instructor	Kagawa Ryosuke
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5420	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

To be able to analyze various problems related to cities and regions in accordance with the theoretical framework of economics. Understand the methods of empirical analysis and policy evaluation using econometric methods, and acquire research skills.

Course Contents

This course is a seminar-style study of a textbook that covers empirical economic analysis of cities and regions. As an introduction, we will touch on inequality indices and economic agglomeration indices, which are space-specific indices, and confirm methods of causal inference and natural experiments. The first half of the course deals with the empirical analysis of the economy of agglomeration in urban economics. The second half of the course deals with the empirical analysis of economic geography, covering topics such as home market effects, spatial wage structure, and trade costs.

We will also discuss not only analytical methods but also actual cases of analysis, and practice using statistical software and GIS to enable students to conduct their own research.

Emphasis will be placed on presentations by the students and active discussions in the class. The textbook used and the content of the class may be changed depending on the level of understanding and interest of the students.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA328

Course Title	Special Study on American Economy1
Instructor	Yamagata Hiroyuki
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5520	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will read US economy research papers from Japan and overseas. At the same time, professor will guide students in their researches so students can establish their research subjects.

Course Contents

Students will read US economy research papers and literatures. In 2021, students will study "Introduction to Contemporary US Political Economy" by Nobuki Kawasaki, Takuro Kawane and Takeyasu Fujiki, Minerva Shobo.

If students desire, they may present their research reports. When selecting research subjects, it is important to specify outstanding researchers in these areas, read their works and papers, and find out unclear arguments. Students are recommended to work on this early.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA329

Course Title	Special Study on American Economy2
Instructor	Yamagata Hiroyuki
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5520	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will read the latest research literatures on policy documents and debates to understand latest trend of US economic policy. At the same time, professor will guide students in their researches.

Course Contents

Following Special Study on American Economy 1, students will discuss new modern US political and economic trend. In this class, students will discuss the latest policy issue over baseline of US economic policy. If students desire, they may read various literatures. Professor will accommodate various genres.

If students desire, they may present their research reports. When selecting research subjects, it is important to specify outstanding researchers in these areas, read their works and papers, and find out unclear arguments. Students should work on this assignment early.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA330

Course Title	Special Lecture on International Economics 1
Instructor	Miyazaki Reiji
Semester	Spring Semester 1	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5420	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will understand formation and development of post-war international economic order from political economics perspective.

Course Contents

In this class, students will understand current international economy. To do that, students will study global economic development and transitions around WWII until today from political economics perspective, focusing on transition from international relationship to global economy, and its structural change. Furthermore, students will explore relation between actual economy and economic thinking during this transition. Students will also study international economy from policy perspective. In this class, specific political economic phenomena and policy development will be addressed sequentially and their political economic meanings, their impacts on actual economy worldwide, and their significances will be discussed. Therefore, this class tilts towards theories interpret based on the fact, instead of knowledge that focus on theories. In other words, students will focus on qualitative instead of quantitative analysis.

In this class, specific international economic phenomena and policy development will be picked up sequentially to discuss about their mutual relationships, political economic meanings, their impacts and significances in actual economy worldwide. Students will be able to grasp current global economic states by integrating individual information available in large volume daily.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA331

Course Title	Special Lecture on International Economics 2
Instructor	Miyazaki Reiji
Semester	Spring Semester 2	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5420	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will understand globalization through political economics perspective.

Course Contents

After entering 21st century, emerging countries, particularly BRICS, have changed drastically global economic map, which had been dominated by 19th and 20th century imperialism countries and developed industrial countries. Particularly, the rise of China has challenged reigning country US more and more. In many developed nations, globophobia is trying to outdo emerging globalism, evidenced by Brexit and Trump administration in US. This seems to be a sign of arriving era with higher uncertainty and instability.

In this class, students will examine development and transition of world economy from around WWII until today while focusing on the transition from international economic relationship to global economy and changes in its structure to understand current international economy. Students will also try to understand the international economy from political policy perspective by finding out the relationship between actual economic and the conceptual economic within the transition process. Furthermore, the class will look into specific political economic phenomena and policy development sequentially to discuss their political economic meanings, their impacts and significances in actual economy worldwide. Therefore, this class tilts towards “theories” that is to be used for interpretation based on the fact, instead of “knowledge” that focus on theories. In other words, the approaches focus on qualitative instead of quantitative analysis.

In this class, specific international economic phenomena and policy development will be picked up sequentially, while considering their mutual relationships and political economic meanings as well as their impacts and significances in actual economy worldwide. Students will be able to grasp current global economic states by integrating individual information available in large volume daily.

Others

※Please refer to the “Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System” for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA332

Course Title	Special Lecture on International Justice and Corporate Governance 1
Instructor	Shirasaka Toru
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5820	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will study increasingly important issues in corporate management in recent years: (1) corporate governance, (2) business ethics, compliance, (3) corporate social responsibility (CSR), environment, society, and governance (ESG), and sustainable development goals (SDGs). Students will analyze and clarify these subjects from international corporate legal perspective. (This class will focus on (1). (2) and (3) will be lectured in Special Lecture on International Justice and Corporate Governance 2.)

Course Contents

In this class, professor will consider students' interests and use distributed PowerPoint slides, documents, papers, and audio-visual materials. Students will participate actively in class through Q&A and mini report presentation. First, students will study corporate governance, including its discussion, development, international environmental change, management system revolution, obligation when constructing internal control system, and frequent unfavorable cases among global corporations. Next, students will understand corporate ethics and social responsibilities (CSR). They will understand importance of environment, society, and governance (ESG) and current state of sustainable development goals (SDGs). In recent years, society are judging corporations with harsher eyes. In addition to existing financial performance improvement, corporations must be honest in their actions and fulfill their social responsibilities. These are the key to business success. Students will analyze these through theories and case researches.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA333

Course Title	Special Lecture on International Justice and Corporate Governance 2
Instructor	Shirasaka Toru
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5820	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

This class will cover increasing important issues in corporate management in recent years: (1) corporate governance, (2) business ethics and compliance, (3) corporate social responsibility (CSR), environment, society, and governance (ESG), and sustainable development goals (SDGs). Students will analyze and clarify these subjects from international corporate law perspective. (This class will focus on (2) and (3)).

Course Contents

In this class, professor will consider students' interests and use distributed PowerPoint slides, documents, papers, and audio-visual materials. Students will participate actively in class through Q&A and mini report presentation. First, students will study corporate governance, including its discussion, development, international environmental change, management system revolution, obligation when constructing internal control system, and frequent unfavorable cases among global corporations. Next, students will understand corporate ethics and social responsibilities (CSR). They will understand importance of environment, society, and governance (ESG) and current state of sustainable development goals (SDGs). In recent years, society are judging corporations with harsher eyes. In addition to existing financial performance improvement, corporations must be honest in their actions and fulfill their social responsibilities. These are the key to business success. Students will analyze these through theories and case researches.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA334

Course Title	Special Lecture on Economics and Environment C-1
Instructor	Tamaki Akihiro
Semester	Spring Semester 1	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5820	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will understand purpose and implication of business strategies in corporations. They will also understand and use analysis frameworks, which are prerequisites for business-environment analysis. By doing this, students will acquire skill to accurately extract corporate issues from management perspective.

Course Contents

In early lectures, students will understand frameworks used to determine business strategies in corporations. After that, with the understandings of analysis basics, students will learn about qualitative management analysis tool such as SWOT, 3C and 5Forces while studying about application examples. To finish, students will work on case studies using listed companies as materials to acquire the image for practical application.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA339

Course Title	Special Lecture on Economics and Environment C-2
Instructor	Tamaki Akihiro
Semester	Spring Semester 2	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5820	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will acquire essential knowledge in financial analyses in relationships with corporate activities and business strategies to understand thoroughly corporate management subjects also from financial perspective. Students will aim to acquire skills applicable in these analyses.

Course Contents

Students will learn techniques to analyze and evaluate corporate managements by approaching them through financial numbers. Students will understand implications of systems and major subjects such as profit-and-loss statements and balance sheets from perspective of managements and business activities. At the same time, students will work on the case study about listed companies for financial analyses. They will learn hands-on how to read financial indicators and their relationships with corporate activities.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA340

Course Title	Special Lecture on the Contemporary Firm 1
Instructor	Sakamoto Yoshikazu
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5820	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

This lecture aims to understand the concept of 'Innovation'. We will primarily focus on such points as whether there are any differences in definitions among scholars, how innovations affect the situation or regime of the economy, and how players succeed in innovations.

Course Contents

This lecture asks participants to read the text to understand various topics of the concept of 'Innovation'. And we will discuss related problems on every topic. However, we will change the issue flexibly depending on the interests of the participants.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA343

Course Title	Special Lecture on the Contemporary Firm 2
Instructor	Sakamoto Yoshikazu
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5820	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

This lecture aims to understand the concept of 'Innovation'. We will primarily focus on 'Entrepreneur' and 'Entrepreneurship', which are thought of as the leader of 'Innovation'.

Course Contents

This lecture asks participants to read the text to understand various topics of the concept of 'Innovation'. And we will discuss related problems on every topic. However, we will change the issue flexibly depending on the interests of the participants.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA344

Course Title	Special Lecture on Accounting 1
Instructor	Yoneyama Masaki
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Basic concepts and postulates underlying the system of accounting standards will be provided during the course. The course focuses on the theoretical backgrounds as well as major characteristics of accounting standards.

Course Contents

The course focuses on the overview of current accounting system. Detailed information on each accounting standards will be given in the following course in Fall (Autumn) semester.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA401

Course Title	Special Lecture on Accounting 2
Instructor	Yoneyama Masaki
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

This course focuses on the understanding the basic concepts, principles and postulates underlying financial accounting standards.

Course Contents

The main purpose of this course is to understand the basic concepts and principles underlying financial accounting standards. In comparison with the lecture in the Spring semester, this course is more focused on the major characteristics of each accounting standards.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA402

Course Title	Special Lecture on Business Analysis 1
Instructor	Tamura Yasokazu
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5820	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Modern corporations, i.e. individual capitals, bring greater impacts on our lives as they grow. How can we approach and understand current states of these mega corporations? In Special Lecture on Business Analysis 1, students will research methods to analyze these corporate trends and characteristics from social economics perspective.

Course Contents

Individual capitals are active not only in individual corporations but also in consolidated business groups. In Special Lecture on Business Analysis 1, students will look into basic management analysis method in these individual capitals considering perspectives of not only various stakeholders, but also citizens and social economics. At the same time, students will also research the actual corporation cases using various data such as securities reports.

Notably, students will consider characteristics of modern capitalism and industry from business analysis perspective. They will then discuss business analysis methods and frameworks.

Furthermore, students will study how mega corporations have been grown, what is the essence of profitability and corporations, and corporates' paying capability and financial structure stability while discussing characteristics of accounting data from its relationships with accounting policies and earnings management.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA403

Course Title	Special Lecture on Business Analysis 2
Instructor	Tamura Yasokazu
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5820	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

In Special Lecture on Business Analysis 2, students will look into methods used to analyze current states of individual capitals from social economics perspective. Modern mega corporations promote restructuring, diversifying, and multi-nationalizing themselves to accumulate retained earnings. Therefore, in addition to analyzing these corporate trends, students will also research the way corporations should go to for people in this chaotic modern society.

Course Contents

In addition to the analysis that uses simple data such as productivity analysis in mega corporations, students will also look into methods that utilize the various data including consolidated data and segment information to analyze diversifying and globalizing corporate trends.

Furthermore, students will conduct applied researches to filter out large reserve of retained earnings in mega corporations and to analyze their current states.

Students will study and research what can be read about corporation from their cash flow data, their employee status and corporate social responsibilities, new indicators and their issues.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA404

Course Title	Special Lecture on Management Accounting 1
Instructor	Morofuji Yumi
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The purpose of this course is to understand management accounting systems for managers' decision making and performance evaluation. An additional purpose is to develop the logical thinking ability of students through dealing with managerial problems and the management accounting systems to cope with those problems. It also focuses on the impact of management accounting on human behavior and psychology.

Course Contents

Students will read and discuss intermediate textbooks, papers, and cases of managerial accounting. Students will learn about calculation methods and theoretical knowledge behind them for management accounting theoretical frameworks, traditional methods used in performance management accounting and decision accounting, management accounting methods used to achieve strategic planning and execution to reflect on management accounting systems desirable for corporations. It also focuses on the impact of management accounting on human behavior and psychology.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA405

Course Title	Special Lecture on Management Accounting 2
Instructor	Morofuji Yumi
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will be able to think for themselves about how management accounting should affect the decision-making, behavior, and psychology of managers and organizational members.

Course Contents

In recent years, it has become more important for organizational members to exhibit their creativity and to cooperate with each other. Read and discuss papers on management accounting for creativity and collaboration. Since most of the papers are written in English, it is necessary to prepare for English reading comprehension from the spring semester.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA406

Course Title	Special Lecture on Financial Accounting 1
Instructor	Kometani Kenji
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

In this class, students will analyze roles of financial accounting theoretically and empirically. Students will understand theories related to financial accounting researches. They will also analyze relationships among these theories, accounting tasks and standards setting based on actual evidences.

Course Contents

Among the researches on financial accounting, this class will mainly cover the theories and empirical proof related to the capital market research. Students will study textbooks contents used in each lesson beforehand. When necessary, students will prepare summary of these contents. Each class will focus on students' explanations, with supplementary explanations from professor. Professor may change class structure based on number of students. In addition to textbooks, students may also use related papers in each class.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA407

Course Title	Special Lecture on Financial Accounting 2
Instructor	Kometani Kenji
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

In this class, students will analyze roles of financial accounting theoretically and empirically. Students will understand financial accounting research theories not discussed in Special Lecture on Financial Accounting 1. Students will analyze relationships among these theories, accounting tasks, and standards setting based on actual evidences.

Course Contents

Among these financial accounting researches, students will use mostly theories and evidences related to financial conclusions of accounting data. Students will study textbooks contents used in each lesson beforehand. When necessary, students will prepare summary of these contents. Each class will focus on students' explanations, with supplementary explanations from professor. Professor may change class structure based on number of students. In addition to textbooks, students may also use related papers in each class.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA408

Course Title	Special Lecture on Cost Accounting 1
Instructor	Uchino Kazuki
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

To understand and be able to critically examine the research trend on cost accounting.

Course Contents

Students will read and discuss specialized literatures of cost accounting, referring to its methodology. If the literatures are in foreign language, students will not only translate them, but also understand their calculation methods and theoretical bases behind them.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA409

Course Title	Special Lecture on Cost Accounting 2
Instructor	Uchino Kazuki
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

To understand and be able to critically examine the research trend on cost accounting.

Course Contents

Following Special Lecture 1, students will read and discuss specialized literatures of cost accounting, referring to its methodology. If the literatures are in foreign language, students will not only translate them, but also understand their calculation methods and theoretical bases behind them.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA410

Course Title	Special Lecture on International Accounting 1
Instructor	Tsunogaya Noriyuki
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will acquire applied skills through discussion, given the basic knowledge on international accounting included in academic journals.

Course Contents

Participants (all students) will read the relevant parts of the journal and summarize the questions and issues they want to discuss. Presenters (several students) will give presentations on the relevant parts of the journal. The moderator (one student) will take the lead in resolving questions about the journal and facilitating discussion. At the end of the semester, participants (all students) will give a presentation on a topic of their own interest.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA413

Course Title	Special Lecture on International Accounting 2
Instructor	Shuto Hiroshi
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Students will understand characteristics and details of the International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS). Students will also understand its differences from other standards (e.g. Japan and US).

Course Contents

This class will cover the contents and characteristics of individual accounting standards, including the concept and background of IFRS (asset and liability approach, fair value accounting, comprehensive income, etc.), and financial statements prepared under IFRS.

In this class, students are expected to prepare their presentations in advance and actively participate in discussions.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA414

Course Title	Special Lecture on Enterprise Taxation 1
Instructor	Sakamoto Masashi
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The objective of this course is to cultivate the ability for understanding and interpretation of dividend distribution by capital surplus and retained earnings, and to deepen the understanding of recent cases.

Course Contents

Students will deepen their understanding by reading textbooks and articles, attending lectures related supreme court judgement on May11,2021:taxation on dividend distribution by capital surplus and retained earnings.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA417

Course Title	Special Lecture on Enterprise Taxation 2
Instructor	Sakamoto Masashi
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The objective of this course is to cultivate the ability for understanding and interpretation of recent tendencies of accounting standards and its influence on corporate income tax.

Course Contents

Students will deepen their understanding by reading textbooks and academic papers, attending lectures related diversification of accounting standards and its influence on corporate income tax, interpretation of article 22-4 of the corporation tax act.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA418

Course Title	Advanced Auditing1
Instructor	Ozawa Michihiro
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

To understand and be able to critically examine practical operation of financial statement audit and the research trends.

Course Contents

In this class, students will use English case studies for discussions to help them understand various audit concepts and particularly auditors' decisions.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA419

Course Title	Advanced Auditing2
Instructor	Ozawa Michihiro
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

To understand and be able to critically examine the research trends on financial statement audit.

Course Contents

In this class, students will discuss the latest research papers (in English) to understand current audit research trends. Professor will adapt the class to students' level of understanding. In addition to auditing, students need to have basic statistics knowledge.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA420

Course Title	Special Lecture on Corporate Finance 1
Instructor	Ishida Souhei
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

This lecture aims to provide students with the knowledge necessary to write a master's thesis on corporate finance and related research areas. Specifically, students acquire basic corporate finance knowledge by reading introductory texts on corporate finance.

Course Contents

Corporate finance is an academic discipline that deals with financing, investment, and payout from a firm's standpoint. This lecture aims to provide master's students with basic corporate finance knowledge by reading the introductory texts on corporate finance. Students must read the textbook's designated sections and prepare resumes for each lesson. They discuss based on the resumes to deepen their knowledge of corporate finance.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA421

Course Title	Special Lecture on Corporate Finance 2
Instructor	Ishida Souhei
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5620	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

This lecture aims to provide students with the knowledge necessary to write a master's thesis on corporate finance and related research areas. Specifically, students acquire advanced corporate finance knowledge by reading academic papers on corporate finance.

Course Contents

Corporate finance is an academic discipline that deals with financing, investment, and payout from a firm's standpoint. This lecture aims to provide master's students with advanced corporate finance knowledge by reading academic papers on corporate finance. Students must read the papers designated and prepare resumes for each lesson. They discuss based on the resumes to deepen their knowledge of corporate finance.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA422

Course Title	Special Lecture on Taxation A-1
Instructor	Sakai Tsutomu
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The objective of this course is to cultivate the ability for understanding and interpretation of tax law or tax cases, and to deepen the understanding of Japanese national/local tax system under the decentralization.

Course Contents

The course will clarify the role of tax and the basic principles of tax law, and will outline the national/local finance/tax system. The course will also outline the national/local tax reform process/history, and the tax administration. The course will generally outline personal income tax, corporate tax, consumption tax, property tax and local tax under the decentralization.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA423

Course Title	Special Lecture on Taxation A-2
Instructor	Sakai Tsutomu
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The objective of this course is to cultivate the ability for understanding and interpretation of tax law or tax cases, and to deepen the understanding of Japanese national/local tax system under the decentralization.

Course Contents

Based on Taxation A-1 course, the course will outline some important issues including local tax about personal income tax, corporate tax, consumption tax and property tax, with reference to some important tax cases.

The course will also outline the change of local taxation autonomy under the decentralization reform and finally outlook the future of tax system under the change of economic/social conditions.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA424

Course Title	Special Lecture on Taxation B-1
Instructor	Tanaka Koshi
Semester	Spring Semester 1	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

It is essential for business owners and accounting experts to have deep understanding about taxation, which is an important factor in economic activity. In Special Lecture on Taxation B-1 and B-2, students will understand the basic principles of overall tax law, and cultivate the ability to precisely interpret the tax law texts and apply them to specific issues.

Course Contents

Professor will explain general tax law theories such as how to think when interpret the tax law, and the basic part related to the taxation prerequisite of income tax law.

Professor will use related legal cases as materials to organize differences among tax agency and payers' arguments, and discuss theories of legal decisions. Students must participate actively in presentations and discussion. Through these, students will accelerate their understanding about interpretation and application of tax law in these specific taxation cases.

In addition, students should bring statues at large for reference as this lecture will proceed by following actual codes.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA425

Course Title	Special Lecture on Taxation B-2
Instructor	Tanaka Koshi
Semester	Spring Semester 2	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5920	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

It is essential for business owners and accounting experts to have deep understanding about taxation, which is an important factor in economic activity.

In Special Lecture on Taxation B-1 and B-2, students will understand basic principles of overall tax codes. Students will interpret and apply tax codes accurately in specific problems.

Course Contents

Professor will outline the basic part of the taxation requirements in corporate tax law and international taxation.

Professor will use related legal cases as materials to organize differences among tax agency and payers' arguments, and discuss theories of legal decisions. Students must participate actively in presentations and discussion. Through these, students will accelerate their understanding about interpretation and application of tax law in these specific taxation cases.

In addition, students should bring statues at large for reference as this lecture will proceed by following actual codes.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA426

Course Title	Special Lecture on Research Methods
Instructor	Yamazaki Yukiko
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5020	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

(1) Students will acquire the basic knowledge about various survey/research methods used in the field of social science to evaluate and examine critically the best method for their own research. (2) Through the assignments (Students will read literatures and create summaries, in addition to conducting basic researches on unclear points or questions found in these literatures). Through these assignments, they will be able to correctly summarize main points in these writings. (3) They will discuss with others in the class to acquire theoretical thinking and conversational skills.

Course Contents

Each week, professor will assign reading materials. In this class, students will take turns to read these materials, make presentations based on them, and participate in discussions. Students must acquire basic research methods to summarize assigned literatures and research unclear points or questions. Students are requested to research and summarize these in self-directed manner before attending each class.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA450

Course Title	Special Lecture on Economic History 1
Instructor	Yamamoto Yu
Semester	Spring Semester 1	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Acquire basic knowledge about the history of the modern Japanese economy.
In particular, focus on corporate activities to gain understanding.

Course Contents

Consider the history of the modern Japanese economy.
In particular, we will focus on corporate activities.
Specifically, students will read and understand the specified text and have a discussion.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA455

Course Title	Special Lecture on Economic History 2
Instructor	Yamamoto Yu
Semester	Spring Semester 2	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX5720	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Acquire basic knowledge about the history of the modern Japanese economy.
In particular, focus on corporate activities to gain understanding.

Course Contents

Consider the history of the modern Japanese economy.
In particular, we will focus on corporate activities.
Specifically, students will read and understand the specified text and have a discussion.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA456

Course Title	Special Lecture on Conference Presentation
Instructor	Nishizaki Sumiyo
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	ECX6011	Language	English

Course Objectives

- a) Students will be able to identify factors that will increase the effectiveness of a presentation.
- b) Students will develop their confidence when giving a presentation in English.
- c) Students will understand the process of creating a strong abstract and preparing a presentation.
- e) [Mainly Ph.D. students] Students will understand how to form a presentation panel, construct a strong panel application, and prepare for a group presentation.
- f) [Mainly Ph.D. students] Students will be able to participate in conference sessions as an active audience, a panel chair, and a discussant.

Course Contents

Research presentation is an essential part of graduate studies and professional life. This course is designed to help students present their research in English. In addition to lectures by an instructor, students will participate in mock presentations and constructive feedback exchanges in a friendly atmosphere. Upon request, the class will include guidance on the application for various competitions, professional presentations, or tips for other personal communication. The order of topics may be adjusted to maximize learning outcomes.

Others

※Please refer to the "Syllabus & Class Schedule Search System" for details including course schedule, evaluations, textbooks and others.

<URL>

https://sy.rikkyo.ac.jp/web/preview.php?nendo=2023&kodo_2=KA457

