Course Title	Studies in Sports Wellness 8(Health Psychology)
Instructor	Endo Shintaro
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	SWG5210	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The aim of this class is to let students think about their research topics from the viewpoint of different fields, starting with psychology, to make new discoveries and uncover approaches with a broader mindset.

Course Contents

In specialized fields, the research methodology and frameworks are typically those that have been passed down within that field. However, it is not uncommon for new discoveries to be made or new ways of thinking to be uncovered when perspectives from other fields are introduced. In this course, students will learn through discussion how psychological phenomena relate to their research theme and the significance of that relationship. Course content will be tailored to meet student interests as necessary.

Course Title	Studies in Sports Wellness 23(Anti-Aging Medicine, Chrono-Medical Science)
Instructor	Hattori Atsuhiko
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	SWG5210	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

The purpose of this course is to understand life phenomena from various viewpoints at the molecular level, and to use the information obtained in this way in our own research activities.

Course Contents

With the development of molecular biology and structural biology, life phenomena have come to be understood at the molecular level. In particular, since the beginning of the 21st century, the fusion of various disciplines, such as chrono-medical science (chronobiology), astrobiology, and anti-aging medicine, has been flourishing. Therefore, this lecture will introduce the fundamentals of molecular life science and its applications with a focus on chronobiology and anti-aging medicine.

Course Title	Seminar for Master's Thesis 1
Instructor	Matsuo Tetsuya
Semester	Fall Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	SWG6630	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

In preparation for writing a master's thesis, students will develop a research theme and clarify the necessary research methods.

Course Contents

In the fall semester of the first year, students begin Seminar for master's thesis 1, in which they are assigned a supervisor. Thereafter, the period up to the completion of the second year is divided into two semesters, Seminar for master's thesis 2 and Seminar for master's thesis 3, in a step-by-step manner. Based on the premise of reviewing the basic literature and previous research on the research theme, students learn how to conceive the basic framework for writing their own master's thesis and how to logically structure their thesis, while progressing through the process from setting the research theme to completing the research. Seminar for master's thesis 1 is a course offered in the fall semester of the first year, and the main content of the guidance is the setting of research themes and the selection of research methods.

Course Title	Seminar for Master's Thesis 2
Instructor	Yoshida Naruto
Semester	Spring Semester	Credit	2 Credits
Course Number	SWG6630	Language	Japanese

Course Objectives

Gather pre-research materials and set down the framework of a thesis paper.

Course Contents

In the fall semester of the first year, students begin Seminar for master's thesis 1, in which they are assigned a supervisor. Thereafter, the period up to the completion of the second year is divided into two semesters, Seminar for master's thesis 2 and Seminar for master's thesis 3, in a step-by-step manner. Based on the premise of reviewing the basic literature and previous research on the research theme, students learn how to conceive the basic framework for writing their own master's thesis and how to logically structure their thesis, while progressing through the process from setting the research theme to completing the research. In Seminar for master's thesis 2, students are mainly instructed to collect materials from previous studies and to prepare the framework of their thesis.
